

LEGAL STATUS & RESEARCH ACTIVITY DISCLAIMER

Creative Military Solutions | Defense Research Initiative | Conceptual Research Model

Important Note

I would like to clarify that I am not a registered company. I am an individual contributor involved in research and development within a research initiative that does not require any licensing.

The initiative is individual-led and operates in a model comparable to a sole contractor, focusing exclusively on theoretical research, analysis, and concept development.

There is no industrial activity, manufacturing, sales, or commercial exploitation involved. Accordingly, no commercial registration, industrial license, or operational permit is required for conducting this type of independent theoretical research.

CMS is a conceptual research model. It does not require licensing, as there are no industrial or applied activities involved, only theoretical research.

Previously, I aspired to establish a company; however, due to a lack of financial resources, I found that a research initiative is sufficient for conducting theoretical research activities.

I am the founder of a research initiative and engaged in theoretical, non-applied, and non-operational research activities.

This activity is protected under international principles governing freedom of thought and intellectual inquiry.

This is further supported by the existence of correspondence with official authorities, which provides indirect legal grounding and recognition of the legitimacy of this research activity.

CMS Defense | Smail Zabat
contributor@cmsdefense.nexus
Defense Foresight Analyst & R&D Contributor

smail zabat

CREATIVE MILITARY
SOLUTIONS